MAN WHO ATTEMPTED LIFE OF MORGAN TRIES TO TAKE OWN LIFE BY GASHING ARM

ERASER CONTAINER ON PENCIL USED TO CUTS HIS WRIST

Warden Finds Prisoner Weak from Loss of Blood but Seemingly in No Danger

DEED THOUGHT SIGNIFICANT

Officials Connect Attempt at Life with Suspicion That Frank Holt Is Muenter

MINEOLA, L. I., July 6.—Frank Holt, who Saturday morning tried to assassinate John Pierpont Morgan, attempted to take his own life in the Mineola county jail last night by gashing his wrist with a lead pencil.

It was learned today that Holt fashioned a knife-like weapon out of the pencil. He took off the eraser from the one end and with his teeth mashed the tin container into a sharp edge. With this he was able to easily gash his wrist.

Only the prompt action of a turnkey frustrated his attempt. A doctor was hurriedly summoned and the wound sewed up. Holt lost considerable blood but it was stated this morning he was in no danger.

Turnkey John Lecherstriker watched Holt at intervals during the night. Soon after midnight he noticed blood trickling down the prisoner's clothes. He found that blood was pouring from a gash in his wrist. The jail physician was summoned. He sewed up the wound. The turnkey found a bloody pencil on the floor of the cell.

Officials considered it significant that Holt attempted his life soon after learning that he is suspected of being Muenter.

Further efforts were to be made today to identify Holt as Prof. Erich Muenter, the former Harvard professor wanted in Cambridge on a charge of wife murder. Charles R. Apted, assistant custodian at Harvard; T. W. Hilliard of the Middlesex county, Mass., police force, and two former pupils of Muenter, were expected at the Mineola county jail.

Martin W. Littleton has been retained as Holt's counsel. The prisoner dismissed T. J. Ready who was first to act as his attorney.

Holt today received the following telegram from his wife in Dallas, Texas:

"Have best counsel here. Advised to rest and wait. You must do same. Loving greetings hourly. A beautiful tribute to you in both evening papers. I am tarrying for details of our finances. I will come when you need me. Don't be afraid. Rest.

"LEONE."

A pretty young girl, who made a dramatic appearance at the county jail today and demanded that she be allowed to see Frank Holt, injected a new element of mystery into the investigation of the activities of the man who set off a bomb in the capitol at Washington and attempted J. P. Morgan's life.

Warden Hulse, who refused the girl's admittance, said she refused to give her name or her reasons for wanting to talk to Holt. She had a letter, the jail officials said, purporting to come from the chief of police of Dallas, Texas, asking that "every courtesy" be shown her.

The girl arrived in Mineola, presumably from New York at 1:15 a. m. Holt told the jail authorities today he had no idea whom his mysterious visitor could be. His wife, he said, was in Dallas yesterday.

Dr. Cleghorn, county jail physician, declared this afternoon that an examination of Frank Holt, assailant of J. P. Morgan, revealed scars of the same character described in police descriptions of Erich Muenter, the Harvard professor who disappeared nine years ago, following the poisoning of his wife.

SEVEN DEAD IN POWDER EXPLOSION

MONTREAL, July 6.—An explosion in the plant of the Canadian explosives company at Beloeil, Quebec, today killed seven and injured that many more, three seriously.

Among the dead is a British explosive expert, lent to the company during the war.

ALLIED LOSSES HUGE

BERLIN, via Wireless to Sayville, July 6.—Anglo-French losses around La Basse recently have been fearful, according to reports from German commanders. One regiment alone is reported to have lost 3,400 of its 4,000.

HERE'S J. P. MORGAN, PROFESSOR WHO HOPED TO STOP THE WAR BY KILLING HIM, AND SHERIFF WHO ARRESTED WOULD-BE ASSASSIN

New photograph of J. P. Morgan; posed photograph of Frank Holt in custody; Deputy Sheriff Theodore Campbell and Frank Holt after latter had been taken in custody.

Here are the principal figures in the near-tragedy at Glen Cove, N. Y., last Saturday. The photos of Holt were taken after he had attempted to kill J. P. Morgan, head of the banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co., hoping that he might thereby end the European war. Holt who is now in jail, is a native American of German extraction. He is a former student and instructor at Cornell University, and was to have become the head of the department of French in the Southwestern Methodist University at Dallas, Texas, next fall.

WHERE IN WISCONSIN WAS HOLT BORN AND WHAT WAS HIS EARLY LIFE ARE QUESTIONS PUT IN MYSTERIOUS CASE

SUSPICIONS HELD AGAINST HUSBAND ABSURD SAYS WIFE

Spouse of Holt Explains Few Details of Early Life of Man Thought to Be Muenter

DALLAS, Texas, July 6.—Where in Wisconsin was Frank Holt, Morgan's assailant, born?

What did he do as a boy, and where was he from boyhood days until he came out of Mexico to the Fort Worth Polytechnic college in 1908?

Where in particular was he nine years ago, when Mrs. Erich Muenter, wife of a Harvard instructor, was strangely poisoned?

Was he indeed Muenter?

To all of these questions—except the last—Mrs. Frank Holt today returned answers which only made the mystery around this mysterious man deeper.

Was Holt indeed Muenter?

Impossible, absurd, inconceivable—she told the United Press through the medium of a local attorney, authorized to give an interview for her and in her name. She herself still hid from interviewers.

Why is she not at her husband's side at the lone cell in Mineola county jail?

She herself wants to go—almost begs—it is understood.

"Some complications at the outset prevented," said her brother, Oscar

MORGAN "PRACTICALLY OUT OF DANGER" WORD GIVEN OUT TO PUBLIC

GLEN COVE, L. I., July 6.—J. P. Morgan's physicians announced early today that because of the fact that their patient is "practically out of danger" no more bulletins will be issued from the Morgan home, near here. In the future all information concerning the banker's condition will be given out from the offices of J. P. Morgan & Company in New York.

All persons who came from the Morgan estate today made reassuring statements concerning Morgan's condition. They confirmed the doctor's assertions that the wounded financier is becoming restless because he is forced to remain in bed and personally feels that he will be able to sit up within a short time.

Guards, however, continued to bar all approaches to the Morgan grounds today.

Thus far none of the local attorneys who will conduct the case against Frank Holt, the would-be assassin, have been permitted to talk to Morgan, though Holt is to have a preliminary hearing here either today or tomorrow. This fact has renewed the belief in some quarters that Morgan's condition is not as favorable as the optimistic physicians' bulletins indicate, though Junius Morgan, the banker's son, has personally assured newspapermen that his father has about passed the danger point.

Doctors here said today that Morgan's escape from a fatal wound in the abdomen was almost miraculous. How the bullet that entered almost at the center of the abdomen ranged downward without piercing the abdominal wall, was a mystery to them. They were of the opinion that the bullet may have entered at such an angle that it was deflected by thick rolls of muscle.

Morgan Calls Office

NEW YORK, July 6.—J. P. Morgan called his office over the telephone from his home at Glen Cove this morning. Talking to his partners he told them he felt fine and he discussed some of his business affairs.

The financier talked for several minutes, all of his partners taking turns at the telephone. It was stated that he discussed general affairs. A great feeing of relief was noticeable at the Morgan offices today following the announcement yesterday that the financier was positively out of danger.

SHOOTS FIANCEE AND SELF

BELVIDERE, Ill., July 6.—His wedding day set for next week, Charles Brehmer, a prosperous young farmer, today shot and killed Ida Camp, his fiancee, at the girl's home.

LICENSES GRANTED OVER PROTEST OF DISTRICT ATTORNEY

Cushner and Chamberlain Are Given Liquor Permits by Town of Campbell

PROMISE TO OBSERVE LAW

Both Men Are on Carpet Before Licenses Are Given Them by Board

The French Island and North Salem road saloon resorts of J. P. ("Jack") Cushner and Wm. Chamberlain, the latter the old Jack Bennett place, will continue to operate for another year.

Acting against the advice of District Attorney Otto M. Schlabach, the town of Campbell town board yesterday granted liquor licenses to the two men whose licenses were held up when every Campbell saloon keeper was called on the carpet and given warning that a new regime had been instituted. The places of John Elsen and James Sokolik have been refused licenses.

Chamberlain, who recently purchased the place operated by Jack Bennett and Cushner were called on the "carpet" by the board yesterday for the second time in a week. Both saloon men promised to conduct orderly places.

Last Monday the town of Campbell board, with the district attorney, met to discuss the license matter, and at the instance of Schlabach the Elsen and Sokolik applications were refused and the other two held up for decision yesterday.

The district attorney was known to be opposed to granting licenses to either place, and it was rumored that he had hot testimony to produce at yesterday's hearing which would result in the turning down of the applications.

MACKENSEN PURSUES RUSSIANS

Slavs Use Best Troops Against Invaders in Vain Efforts to Stop the Rush

BERLIN, via Wireless to Sayville, L. I., July 6—"The Russian line near Krasnik has been broken in two," said a dispatch received here this afternoon. "One part is being driven eastward and the other toward Lublin and Ivangorod. Warsaw is now threatened by the Austro-German advance."

Mackensen's troops are hotly pursuing the Russians south of Lublin, according to reports received here today. The Slav commanders are hurling their best troops against the Austro-Germans in vain efforts to stop the rush through southeastern Poland. An enormous number of prisoners has been taken by Mackensen.

Between the Pruth and Dniester, the Slavs have made desperate but unsuccessful attempts to break through the Austro-German front. Russian prisoners report that naval guns and heavy howitzers from Slav fortresses have been dismounted and hurried to the firing line.

Petrograd Admits Defeat

PETROGRAD, July 6.—By a terrific bombardment of the Slav trenches, Gen. Mackensen has won a temporary victory in the first stages of the great battle south of Lublin the war office admitted today.

From Krasnik, eastward to the Wieprz river the Russians have been forced to retire on 38 mile front. All day Sunday the Austro-Germans shelled the Slav trenches, hurling hundreds of thousands of projectiles and blowing out whole sections of earthworks. When these positions were no longer tenable the Russians retired upon new defensive positions less than twenty miles from Lublin.

Clain Right Wing Checked

Mackensen's right wing, however, was checked and thrown back by the Russians. Between the Wieprz river and the Bug, all Austro-German attacks were beaten back with heavy losses. In one narrow sector between Krylof and Sokal, fifty-eight miles north of Lember, the Russians have taken several hundred prisoners.

Blind Girl Who Found Sight To Visit La Crosse

Miss Tomsyna Carlyle

Six months more of study at the University of California, study for the first time to be done with the help of eyes, will complete the course Miss Tomsyna Carlyle of La Crosse is taking at the University of California. At the end of that time Miss Carlyle, who graduated in the first class of the La Crosse state normal school although she had been blind from birth, is expected to return to this city to visit her sister, Mrs. Charles H. Rawlinson. Her friends were discussing with delight today the wonderful story of the operation which gave Miss Carlyle normal sight.

Only One Hurt In Celebration Of The Fourth

Eight Year Old Charlie Marston is Powder Burned on Face and Hands by Exploding Firecracker

Only one accident marred the unusually safe and sane Fourth of July in La Crosse. That accident marred the otherwise clean and smiling face of little Charlie Marston, eight year old grandson of Mrs. E. E. Marston, 218 South Fourteenth street.

The youngster, celebrating at 7:30 in the morning, had one hand burned and his face shot full of powder by the discharge of a three-inch cracker. The youngster bent down to relight the cracker, thinking that it had burned out. Just as he picked it up, the cracker exploded. The three-inch salute had been given to him by a youngster of the neighborhood.

This morning he was out playing as usual. The burn was not serious, according to attending doctors.

MRS. HARRIS TO CONDUCT FIGHT FOR LOCAL MEN

Leaves Tomorrow to Appear Before Minnesota Pardon Board for Kolb and Hammond

Mrs. R. B. Harris, 1413 Charles street, will leave tomorrow night for St. Paul, to appear before the Minnesota board of pardons in a plea for clemency for John Kolb and Charles Hammond of La Crosse, who with Orrin Kalderwit were sent to the Minnesota state penitentiary in 1905 for the murder of Freddie King at Columbia Heights.

New evidence which it is said will clear the trio has been prepared and is said to be ready for introduction at the hearing.

BRITISH BULGARIAN MINISTER WITHDRAWS

BERLIN, via Wireless to Sayville, L. I., July 6.—The British minister to Bulgaria, Sir Bax-Ironside, has been withdrawn because of his undiplomatic attitude in the negotiations between the allies and Bulgaria, according to reports reaching here today.

Sofia dispatches assert that the negotiations between Bulgaria and Turkey are proceeding with every prospect of success.

MONTAGUE BIDS IN THE FOOTVILLE AND MIDDLETON WORKS

New Concern Will Be Incorporated by La Crosse Stockholders with Headquarters Here

ARE BEST PLANTS OF COMPANY

Both Are in Operation and Have Not Felt Financial Troubles of the Corporation

Acting as representative of a syndicate of La Crosse stockholders, W. R. Montague, head of the La Crosse Cracker and Candy company at Madison today bid in for $100,000 the Footville and Middleton plants of the Valencia Condensed Milk company. Together with the plants the La Crosse syndicate becomes the possessor of the trade names, labels and good will of the two plants.

Mr. Montague's figure for the two plants amounted to $110,855, less by $12,000 than the appraised value of the plants.

Fred J. Strong, supposed acting for the Nelson Morris company of Chicago, was a close bidder. His figure was not disclosed.

For the trade name "Golden Key" bidding was spirited, the name finally selling at $3,650 after being opened at $50. Mr. Montague was the purchaser.

By the consummation of the deal La Crosse capital comes into possession of two plants whose combined output last year is said to have been worth in the neighborhood of a million dollars. The works at both Footville and Middleton are large and modern, and both have been in full operation despite the financial difficulties of the corporation which owned them.

To Incorporate New Firm

A new concern will shortly be incorporated to operate the two plants. It is considered probable that Mr. Montague will become president, and it is certain that the headquarters and general offices of the company will be established in La Crosse.

Just when the incorporation will take place Mr. Montague, interviewed over the telephone at Madison, was unable to state.

The Footville and Middleton plants are considered the most desirable of the properties of the Valencia company, which has been in the hands of a receiver because of mismanagement.. Both are running at full capacity and have not missed a day during the financial troubles of the company. They have orders on their books at the present time, Mr. Montague said, to insure capac-

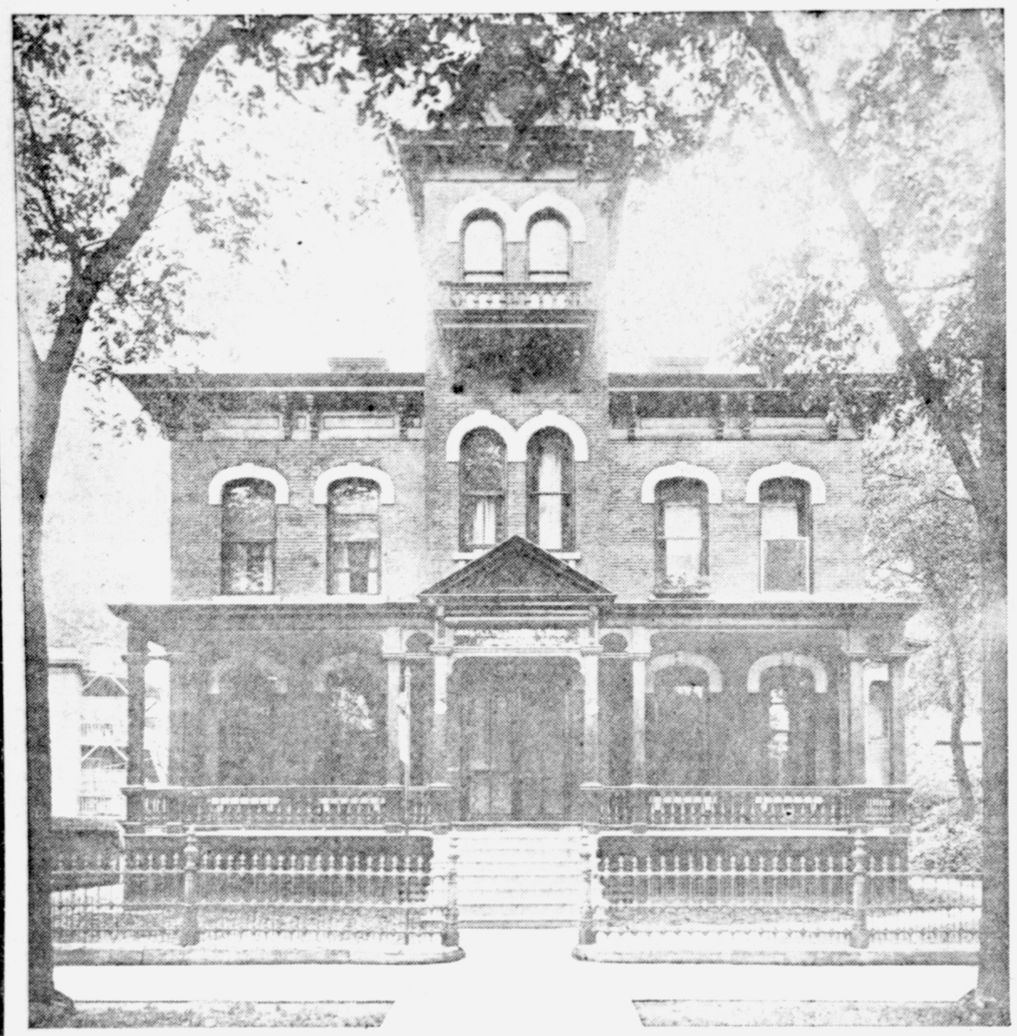
Palatial Funeral Parlors

New Establishment of Tetley, Sletten and Dahl Has No Rival in Point of Equipment and Elegance in Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Located at 211 South Sixth Street, it is Easily Accessible to the Public of the Wide Territory Which This Enterprising Firm Serves.

Home-Like Atmosphere of the Entire Establishment a Genuine Comfort to Bereaved Families to Which it Ministers.



SET IN spacious grounds, with wide porch and entrance, roomy halls and convenient arrangement of well-planned rooms, the handsome brick residence at 211 South Sixth street recently purchased by Messrs. Tetley, Sletten and Dahl, is admirably adapted to the purpose of the new owners.

They wanted something different from anything La Crosse has ever had, something in keeping with the growth of the city, and the purchase of this property is in line with that effort.

* * * *

The house, of which we print an excellent illustration, has been thoroughly overhauled, painted, decorated and remodeled into an undertaking establishment so splendidly appointed and equipped that it has no rival in Wisconsin or Minnesota. No expense has been spared. A "home-like" atmosphere pervades the house, which is arranged on the colonial plan, the hallway being ten feet wide and sixty feet in length, with splendid large airy rooms on either side. From this hall a handsome staircase mounts to the second floor, on either side of which the families of W. L. Tetley and Theodore Dahl have apartments.

* * * *

At the entrance to the house is a good sized vestibule, and on the right a large parlor, which will be used as a chapel. The furnishings are rich and beautiful and a number of ferns and palms give an added air of attractiveness and cheerfulness which is very noticeable. The furniture is of fumed oak and includes a fine piano. Here, as in the other rooms, the superb semi-indirect lighting fixtures are used. The ceilings on the first floor are twelve feet in height, and the acoustic properties are excellent. Seventy-five to 100 persons can be seated comfortably.

Of the six rooms on the lower floor, three will be used as show rooms for the firm's magnificent line of caskets, which are superior to any which have ever been carried in La Crosse. Durable and sanitary bronze and copper caskets of the very best makes. Solid mahogany, oak, and all of the different finishes of broadcloths and silk plushes in all colors. Their lines are the most modern manufactured and the prices range from the cheapest to the most expensive.

* * * *

The rear rooms to the left will be utilized as a casket trimming room and the laboratory, where bodies are embalmed and prepared for burial. The laboratory is most modern, embracing all that pertains to the best in Twentieth Century undertaking. The floor is covered with linoleum and woodwork and side walls are pure white.

* * * *

The grief and trials occasioned by death are so frequently made more poignant by inadequate facilities at the home, that the provision of such attractive and comfortable funeral parlors is highly commendable and will be appreciated by the public. The conducting of funerals from hotels, boarding houses and apartment houses is no longer a necessity. Messrs. Tetley, Sletten and Dahl offer the use of the chapel free of charge, and the disagreeable feeling of holding services from an undertaking establishment is entirely overcome in this beautiful modern residence.

* * * *

Those who visit the parlors will realize how difficult it is to give, in a few paragraphs, a full understanding of their attractiveness and dignity. Many have expressed a desire to see for themselves and to these the house will be open from three to nine p. m. daily until Sunday, July 11.

* * * *

The members of the firm, W. L. Tetley, Andrew Sletten and Theodore Dahl, are so well known and so highly esteemed in this community, and stand so high in their profession, that further introduction is unnecessary. Their motor driven hearse was the first of its type to be seen on La Crosse streets, more than two years ago. They also have a touring car which they use for the convenience of patrons. It might be added that the first motor funeral in this country was held in San Francisco September 24, 1907.

* * * *

Tetley, Sletten & Dahl also have offices, parlors and showrooms at 1219 Caledonia street, which are excellently equipped for all work in the undertaking line.

The TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

BETTY'S TREASURE

BY FLOYD CLAY

(Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The house of the two maiden sisters Misses Phoebe and Prudence Shaw had descended to them from away back in the year the tea was thrown overboard in Boston harbor.

Of course, there had been heirs between that exciting event and the Misses Shaw and those heirs had lived their time and passed on the property by will. None of them had been rich. Indeed, most of them had been very poor. It was a big colonial house, with ten acres of ground around it, and there had been times when the place had been sold for taxes, and would have had a new owner and new tenant had not public sentiment come forward to rescue it.

The sisters had a starvation income, and had passed the half century mark. There were those who could remember them at twenty—fair faced and attractive young women. They had never married because they felt they could not separate. And whenever the subject of marriage or the sale of the place came up they had both exclaimed in chorus, "but there is the garret."

It was the biggest garret for fifty miles around. He who had planned and built the house had not paid special attention to the rooms and halls below, but he had provided a garret that all who came after him should be proud of. It was long and wide and contained treasures beyond enumeration in the shape of spinning wheels and bedsteads and bureaus and chairs and what not of the long ago.

An antiquarian who came one day and was allowed to look but not to touch, said to the eldest sister:

"There is nothing like it under the sun. If you will let me dig here for a week I will give you a hundred dollars."

"Not for a thousand," was the reply.

"But why?"

"Because you would make a dust and litter."

When Betty Lawrence, a cousin, at the age of ten had visited the Misses Shaw and become homesick and shed tears, the sisters comforted her by promising:

"Now, Betty, chirk up and be a good girl and you shall see our garret."

Now, at nineteen, she was a visitor at the old house again, and she had a lively remembrance of that quaint room. She didn't care much for the antique, but she was at a romantic age and endowed with a healthy curiosity, and when one of the sisters had let drop the fact that the old chests were full of documents dating back into the beginning of the eighteenth century she made up her mind to have a look at some of them.

Betty was determined to overhaul that garret if given half a chance. She dwelt upon the idea so constantly that she came to believe that somewhere in that collection of musty relics of the past there lay concealed a document which would bring a treasure to its finder. She even pictured herself standing before her startled old cousins, document in hand, this announcement on her lips:

"My dear cousins, I have found a great treasure. It is all yours. You can each buy a new hat and new shoes, and if you want real coffee for breakfast and chicken pie for dinner you can have them."

One day, while waiting her opportunity to explore the garret, a young man known to the sisters called on an errand for his mother and was introduced to Miss Betty as Mr. Ford Kirkwood. The following day while she was out for a walk, he turned up as if by accident. This happened again on the third day, and on the fourth he forgot to offer an excuse for its rather marked recurrence. Within a week it had happened so frequently that neither saw anything unconventional in the matter.

This rapidly-developing acquaintance did not escape the vigilant eyes of the cousins. One day the elder sister observed frankly:

"Fine boy."

"Don't you think I'm rather a nice girl, Cousin Phoebe?" laughed Betty, with a telltale flush.

"Perhaps it will be wise for me to write to your parents."

Then Miss Phoebe sighed gently and readjusted her glasses.

"I suppose I ought to warn you against love at first sight," she continued.

"But as you never loved at first sight or second sight or any other sight, how can you, Cousin Phoebe?"

At this the gentle old woman smiled feebly.

"Ford Kirkwood is a fine young man, but he has no money," she went on dutifully.

"Nor have I. Papa might manage to give me a check for a hundred dollars for a wedding gift, but it would strain his bank account to do it." Then, throwing her arms about Miss Phoebe and giving her a reassuring kiss, she added more seriously:

"I shall not fall in love, dear cousin. I shall not elope. I shall never marry—at least not until—"

"Until when, Betty?"

"Until I find a treasure," declared the girl as if she meant it.

Betty did not reveal the fact to anybody that she regarded the prospect of securing the treasure as a well defined possibility. In her soul she believed there was a treasure in that garret, but how was she to take the first step toward finding it, with that region closed to her? She felt like demanding the privilege of exploration, but still she bided her time.

Her opportunity came suddenly. There came a day when the sisters were called away on a matter of business which demanded their personal attention.

"I am so afraid you will be lonely," said the elder sister sympathetically. "We shall be away at least three hours."

"Oh, no; I can take a long walk and then read awhile after coming back," said Betty, trying hard to keep her voice steady.

Scarcely was the vehicle bearing the sisters out of sight when Betty flew to the garret. Once within the forbidden treasure house she stood for a long five minuties feasting her eyes. Then she selected the oldest and most battered trunk of the entire lot for inspection.

Letters and documents? Why, the trunk was full to repletion with them. There were deeds, mortgages, receipts, bills of sale, private letters, grants and what not, and the girl had only a glimmering of what had once been their legal value. Three hours had gone by and the return of the sisters might be expected at any moment when she selected a parchment almost at random, replaced the others in the trunk and left the fascinating spot.

It was not until she was safe in her room at night that the girl had an opportunity to examine the parchment. She found very little to reward her. The writing was that of an illiterate man, badly scrawled, some parts of it faded, hopelessly. After puzzling over it until her eyes smarted she put the illegible thing in her handbag with the sleepy conclusion:

"Nobody but an old pirate could have written a hand like that, and of course if he was a pirate he must have written about a treasure. I shall ask Mr. Kirkwood to help to unravel it."

When he saw it Ford Kirkwood agreed with Betty that it was the work of an old pirate, but he admitted frankly that he was not an adept at deciphering hieroglyphics.

"It will have to be done," said Betty determinedly, "before—before ——"

"Why not postpone it until—"

"Until?"

"Until after we are married," he finished heroically.

"But I have promised Cousin Phoebe I shall never marry until I have found a treasure," she said with a great attempt to be serious."

"Well, haven't you found me?" he suggested brazenly. "And I have found you—the most precious treasure of all," he added gallantly.

RIDGE BALL GAME MIGHT HAVE RUN REAL BIG SCORE

CHASEBURG, Wis., Julq 6.—(Special)—Chaseburg defeated Pleasant Ridge Sunday at the bid ridge picnic in a rather easy fashion, 17 to 0, making it four straight from the Ridge team.

Wrobel, pitching for the Ridge team, was wild and the locals hit him at will, while Lehrke for the home team was in great form and was never in danger. The game was called in the seventh on account of rain.

The score:

Chaseburg	264 221 x—17
P. Ridge	000 000 0— 9

Batteries: Lthrke and Aiken; Wrobel and Wrobel.

Fourth Uneventful

The Fourth passed off quietly here, a great many journeying to Pleasant Ridge, where a big picnic given by the German Lutheran church was held. Others spent the day elsewhere and it proved to be the most sane Fourth Chaseburg has experiencel.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — The Sand That Wanted to Be Useful.

The Children Played In the Sand.

"THIS is a funny little story, Jack and Evelyn," said daddy. "You know everybody and everything in the world ought to be useful, but this is not always so. So this is a story about some sand which mourned because it was not useful.

"This sand lay in great golden heaps upon an ocean beach. It chanced to lie upon a part of the shore where nobody came—that is, hardly ever—and this sand grew tired of just lying there and being lonely.

"So one day while the sea breeze was blowing and the gulls were flying over the ocean and the white clouds were sailing like ships over the blue sky the sand voiced its troubles.

"'What good are we?' complained the sands, speaking all together, for the reason that there were so many particles—oh, millions and millions of them, more than you could ever count. 'All we are good for is just to lie here without being in the least useful to anybody or anything and let the waves drum on us. We are tired of having the waves roll in on us and then go away and in a few hours come back again. It's true they bring in pretty shells and seaweed and other curious things, but what good does that do? Nobody ever comes to notice them any more than to appreciate us. We are very unhappy.'

"So these deserted sands continued to pity themselves because they were not useful. But the sea wind, listening, rather smiled to itself, for it had heard something farther down the coast that these complaining sands did not know.

"You see, children, the reason that these sands were not visited more was because there were no railroads in that particular section, and it was not easy to reach them. But it was a lovely place for a bathing beach, and some men had found it out, and they were busy with plans.

"So, presto! first thing you know there was a railroad built right out to those sands and some great hotels and funny little cottages and bathhouses built. And then maybe those sands weren't busy and useful!

"Why, you wouldn't have known them for the same sands. They lay, great golden heaps, ready for the people they had wanted so hard to visit them.

"The children played in the sands and built strange castles and mansions and dug caves and had a glorious time. The beach resounded with laughter. Every one was glad to be there, and the sands, now useful, were much happier than they had been before."

THE "JOKER" IN THE CENTRAL BOARD BILL

If votes in the state senate were based upon logic there would be none for Governor Philipp's central board of education bill. Absolute annihilation was its fate in the senate when that body discussed it in committee of the whole.

That hearing was a drama of intense interest, but we shall not indulge in a recital of the confusion brought upon advocates of the measure by the merciless grilling of Senators Bosshard, Bray and others. Rather we shall turn to the incisive criticism of President Van Hise, who bared defects of which the following are important:

While advocated as relief to the common schools, it is barren of any provision for helping them.

It makes impossible the employment of a distinguished scholar as its central figure by giving his office a clerical name; it dwarfs the possibilities of that office by limiting the powers of the official.

It deprives the university and the normal schools of that single-purposed supervision by competent men which has enabled the regents to direct the upbuilding of a great institution.

It loads upon a smaller number of men three times the work and pressure involved in the regency which the central board orators have criticised as over-worked.

However, the debate has omitted what we believe to be the gravest impeachment of the bill. It is aimed at a "joker" which seems to have sinister significance in that it paves the way for limiting and shaping the influence of the university.

We have reference to a clause which, after conferring upon the faculty the power to initiate university courses and establish university policies, concludes with the provision that the central board shall have authority to "stop work" in any branch, in its discretion.

In other words, the faculty may start work, but the board may stop it. The faculty may propose, but the board may dispose.

What an easy means of getting rid of an instructor objectionable to the board! Just stop his work. Or if the substance of the branch offends, stop that.

Friends of the measure pooh-pooh the thought that the bill would interfere with academic freedom. If the board's power to "stop work" is not there for that purpose, why is it there at all? It can serve no other end and good faith demands that its purpose be acknowledged, or that it be stricken out.

When you are accused of that which you propose but can not defend and you may be unable to successfully deny, it is good policy to laugh. That is why some people laugh at the "absurd" idea that anyone would think of hampering academic freedom. Most of those who laugh loudest were the loudest contributors to campaign talk about "the university in politics." They were displeased with university influence in shaping water power legislation and in relation to other economic or sociological measures. Of course the university was not in politics. The trouble was that the impregnable truth about these things came from the university and was used by legislators. If the university tells the truth about certain things the confusion of which in mystery and sophistry is profitable to certain people, the university is "in politics." One may see the connection between talking the university into politics and laughing restraint of academic freedom out of court. The two lead to the apex of a triangle.

Not long ago Scott Nearing, professor of sociology in Pennsylvania university, was "fired." The reason may be traced to the fact that Nearing wanted an allowance made for the upkeep of the man who operates a machine just as an allowance is made for the upkeep of the machine, because both eventually succumb to wear and tear. That, and other "socialistic" slush about wages enough to keep people alive, working of women and children and other matters of "business."

And certain men laugh at the idea that academic freedom may be hampered!

Within a year a progressive president of Washington state university was fired because he was "too progressive."

How absurd to think that academic freedom could be hampered!

There are cases and cases, but space forbids. The big, encircling fact is that there exists in the Rockefeller Foundation, the Carnegie Institute and a powerful American civic federation opposed to socialism,a far-reaching influence which, masquerading as agencies for better methods, is seeking to make our great universities leaders of the way back into restricted class-channels of thought. These influences are openly at work in Wisconsin. Their aim is definite, their method discernible. They object to the new way of teaching by observation of the thing and its phenomena. They want to put the student's nose in a book of their own choosing and close to him the book of creation.

Paraphrasing the utterances of one who said that if he were permitted to write the songs of a country he cared not who made its laws, a modern educator has observed that if he might write a nation's school-books he had no concern as to who wrote that nation's statutes.

That idea is imbedded in the minds of those who view with alarm the university practices which lead away from the infallibility of written authority into the heresy of original thought and research. Having chosen its limitations, they want education fettered by the ball and chain of dogma.

Unquestionably there are men who honestly believe the central board of education a sound democratic agency, but the definite and unanimous support it has rallied is all of that class and all of those interests who would measure learning with the yard-stick of class advantage.

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

The Trout Fisherman

My father is a truthful man,
Eleven months each year
He tells the truth, no matter whom
It hurts and without fear.
He can't abide chicanery,
Straight out and out is he.
Equivocation he abhors,
He's plain as plain can be.

His fish tales makes one stand aghast,
It really does not seem
That fish as big as he has caught
Had ever swum a stream.
He puts the stories over, too,
Their faith in him folk swear,
Because concerning other things
He's strictly on the square.

A Proof of True Love

Little Eda one day turned to her mother, who was a widow, and said:

"Mamma, do you really and truly love me?"

"Why, of course, my dear. Why do you ask?"

"And will you prove it to me?"

"Yes, if I can."

"Then go marry the man around the corner who keeps the candy store."

Where They Disagreed

A newspaper man was on the witness stand and the attorney was trying to find out something about him.

"Where did you work last?" he asked.

"On the Milwaukee Sentinel."

"Why did you leave?"

"The editor and I disagreed on a national political question."

"Where did you work next?"

"On the New Orleans Item."

"Why did you leave?"

"The editor and I disagreed on a national political question."

This was the reply in every instance, and the judge took a hand.

"What was this national political question," he asked, "upon which you never could agree with your chiefs?"

"Prohibition."

Where She Drew the Line

The maid of all work in the service of a provincial family, the members whereof are not on the most amicable terms, recently tendered her resignation, much to the distress of the lady of the house.

"So you are going to leave us?" asked the mistress sadly. "What's the matter, Mary? Haven't we always treated you like one of the family?"

"Yis, mum," said Mary; "an' I've sthood it as long as I'm going to!"

A Humble Beginning

She was an ardent suffragette and was arguing with her father about the ballot for women.

"Well, what are you suffragettes going to do?" inquired the father.

"We are going to sweep the country," she replied proudly.

"Well, do not despise small beginnings, my dear. Suppose you start with the dining room."

A Valued Souvenir

"Madam," shouted the angry neighbor, "your little Cosmo has just thrown a brick through our window!"

"And would you bring me the brick?" beamed Cosmo's mother. "We are keeping all the little momentos of his youthful pranks."

Polite Though the Heavens Fall

Dorothy was so homesick at her first party, and cried so bitterly, that the hostess's mother suggested that it would be better for her to go home.

Dorothy accepted the idea, but a few minutes later, upon answering a timid knock at the door, the hostess's mother found Dorothy, bathed in tears.

"Well, Dorothy, I am glad to see you again. Did you decide to come back to us?"

"No b'm, I f-f-forgot t-to say I h-had such a nice time."

Where the Difference Lay

"Father," said the minister's son, "my teacher says that 'collect' and 'congregate' mean the same thing. Do they?"

"Perhaps they do, my son," said the venerable clergyman; "but you may tell your teacher that there is a vast difference between a congregation and a collection."

An Even Thing

"Aw, aw," said Snobleigh, "it must be—aw—very unpleasant for you Americans to be—aw—governed by people whom you—aw—wouldn't awsk to dinner."

"Oh, I don't know," said the American girl, "no more so than for you to be governed by people who wouldn't ask you to dinner."

How She Told It

"Oh, mamma," called little Mamie, "I know that lady over there."

"Do you, dear?" asked her mother; "who is she?"

Mamie pondered. "Why, she's the little girl that I told you about that sits next to me in school's grandmother."

HOW TO PREVENT ACID STOMACHS AND FOOD FERMENTATION

By a Stomach Specialist

As a specialist who has spent many years in the study and treatment of stomach trouble, I have been forced to the conclusion that most people who complain of stomach trouble possess stomachs that are absolutely healthy and normal. The real trouble, that which causes all the pain and difficulty, is excessive acid in the stomach, aggravated by food fermentation. Hyper-acidity irritates the delicate lining of the stomach and food fermentation causes wind which distends the stomach abnormally, causing that full bloated feeling. Thus both acid and fermentation interfere with and retard the process of digestion. The stomach is usually healthy and normal, but irritated almost past endurance by these foreign elements—acid and wind. In all such cases—and they comprise over 90 per cent. of all stomach difficulties—the first and only step necessary is to neutralize the acid and stop the fermentation by taking a little warm or cold water immediately after eating, from one to two teaspoonfuls of bisurated magnesia, which is doubtless the best and only really effective antacid and food corrective known. The acid will be neutralized and the fermentation stopped almost instantly, and your stomach will at once proceed to digest the food in a healthy, normal manner. Be sure to ask O. T. Erhart or your druggist for the bisurated magnesia, as I have found other forms utterly lacking in its peculiarly valuable properties.—F. J. G.

LOVE INSURANCE

A COMEDY ROMANCE

By Earl Derr Biggers

Author of Seven Keys To Baldpate.

Copyrighted The Bobbs-Merrill Co.

"Splendid." Mrs. Bruce turned to his lordship. "I think of Helen, Lord Harrowsby, because she, too, married into your nobility Her father made his money in sausage in the Middle West. In his youth he'd had trouble in finding a pair of ready-made trousers, but as soon as the money began to roll in. Helen started to look him up a coat of arms. And a family motto. I remember suggesting at the time, in view of the sausage, 'A family is no stronger than its weakest link.'"

Mrs. Bruce knew when to pause. She paused now. The ripple became an outright laugh. Mr. Paddock sipped languourously from his wineglass. He saw that his lines "got over."

"Went into society head foremost, Helen did," Mrs. Bruce continued. "Thought herself a clever amateur actress. Used to act often for charity—though I don't recall that she ever got it."

"The beauty of Mrs. Bruce's wit," said Miss Meyrick in Mr. Minot's ear, "is that it is so unconscious. She doesn't appear to realize when she has said a good thing."

"There's just a chance that she doesn't realize it," suggested Minot.

"Then Helen met the Duke of Lismore," Mrs. Bruce was speaking once more. "Perhaps you know him, Lord Harrowby?"

"No—er—sorry to say I don't—"

"A charming chap. In some ways. Helen was a Shavian in considering marriage the chief pursuit of women. She pursued. Followed Lismore to Italy, where he proposed. I presume he thought that being in Rome, he must do as the Romeos do."

"But, my dear lady," said Harrowby in a dare, "isn't it the Romans?"

"Isn't what the Romans?" asked Mrs. Bruce blankly.

"Your lordship is correct," said Mr. Paddock hastily. "Mrs. Bruce misquoted purposely—in jest, you know. Jibe—japery."

"Oh—er—pardon me," returned his lordship.

"I saw Helen in London last spring," Mrs. Bruce went on. "She confided to me that she considers her husband a genius. And if genius really be nothing but an infinite capacity for taking champagnes, I am sure the poor child is right"

Little murmurs of joy, and the dinner proceeded. The guests bent over their food, shipped to Mrs. Bruce in a refrigerating car from New York, and very little wearied by its long trip. Here and there two talked together. It was like an intermission between the acts.

Mr. Minot turned to the Omaha girl. Even though she was two wives behind on Mr. Nat Goodwin's career, one must be polite.

It was at the close of the dinner that Mrs. Bruce scored her most telling point. She and Lord Harrowby were conversing about a famous English author, and when she was sure she had the attention of the table, she remarked:

"Yes, we met his wife at the Masonbys'. But I have always felt that the wife of a celebrity is like the coupon on one's railway ticket."

"How's that, Mrs. Bruce?" Minot inquired. After all, Paddock had been kind to him.

"Not good if detached," said Mrs. Bruce.

She stood. Her guests followed suit. It was by this bon mot that she chose to have her dinner live in the gossip of San Marco. Hence with it she closed the ceremony.

"Witty woman, your wife," said one of the colorless New Yorkers to Mr. Bruce, when the men were left alone.

Mr. Bruce only grunted, but Mr. Paddock answered brightly:

"Do you really think so?"

"Yes. Don't you?"

"Why—er—really—" Mr. Paddock blushed. Modest author, he.

A servant appeared to say that Lord Harrowby was wanted at once outside, and excusing himself, Harrowby departed. He found his valet, a plump, round-faced, serious man, waiting in the shadows on the veranda. For a time they talked together in low tones. When Harrowby returned to the dining-room, his never cheerful face was even gloomier than usual.

Spencer Meyrick and Bruce, exiles both of them, talked joyously of business and the rush of the day's work for which both longed The New York man and a sapling from Boston conversed of chamber music. Martin Wall sat silent, contemplative. Perhaps had he spoken his thoughts they would have been of a rich jewel shop at noon—deserted.

A half-hour later Mrs. Bruce's dinner-party was scattered among the palms and flowers of her gorgeous lawn. Mr. Minot had fallen again to the elder girl from Omaha, and blithely for her he was displaying his Broadway ignorance of horticulture. Suddenly out of the night came a scream. Instantly when he heard it, Mr. Minot knew who had uttered it.

Unceremoniously he parted from the Omaha beauty and sped over the lawn. But quick as he was, Lord Harrowby was quicker. For when Minot came up, he saw Harrowby bending over Miss Meyrick, who sat upon a wicker bench.

"Cynthia—what is it?" Harrowby was saying.

Cyntnia Meyrick felt wildly of her shining hair.

"Your necklace," she gasped. "Chain Lightning's Collar. He took it! He took it!"

"Who?"

"I don't know. A man!"

"A man!" Reverent repetition by feminine voices out of the excited group.

"He leaped out at me there—by that tree—pinioned my arms—snatched the necklace. I couldn't see his face. It happened in the shadow."

"No matter," Harrowby replied. "Don't give it another thought, my child."

"But how can I help—"

"I shall telephone the police at once," announced Spencer Meyrick.

"I beg you'll do nothing of the sort," expostulated Lord Harrowby. "It would be a great inconvenience—the thing wasn't worth the publicity that would result. I insist that the police be kept out of this."

Argument—loud on Mr. Meyrick's part—ensued. Suggestions galore were offered by the guests. But in the end Lord Harrowby had his way. It was agreed not to call in the police.

Mr. Minot, looking up, saw a sneering smile on the face of Martin Wall. In a flash he knew the truth.

With Aunt Mary calling loudly for smelling salts, and the whole party more or less in confusion, the return to the house started. Mr. Paddock walked at Minot's side.

"Rather looks as though Chain Lightning's Collar had choked off our gaiety," he mumbled. "Serves her right for wearing the thing in her hair. She spoiled two corking lines for me by not wearing it where you'd naturally expect a necklace to be worn."

Minot maneuvered so as to intercept Lord Harrowby under the portico.

"May I speak with you a moment?" he inquired. Harrowby bowed, and they stepped into the shadows of the drive.

FIRE LOSS $400,000

PORT HURON, Mich., July 6.—Estimates today placed the loss of fire at the Grand Trunk freight sheds here last yesterday at $400,000. Nothing has been found to explain the origin of the fire. The flames burst forth suddenly and within a few months the entire 720 feet of the structure was ablaze. Several hundreds of the sugar, flour and feed were destroyed. It was stated today that the sheds will undoubtedly be rebuilt.

GERMANY TIGHTENS SUBMARINE RING AROUND BRITAIN

Two Submersibles Capable of Crossing the Atlantic Are Launched Each Week

BY CARL W. ACKERMAN
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

BERLIN, via The Hague, July 6.—Germany's submarine ring around the British isles is rapidly growing tighter. Every week the admiralty is launching two monster U boats with sufficient power and supplies to cross the Atlantic. Reliable reports to Admiral von Tirpitz indicate that the high toll taken by the submarines in the last fortnight is striking terror to the hearts of English ship owners.

According to careful estimates made here the loss to English shipying the past two months has averaged $1,000,000 a week, and the German newspapers print longer lists each week of the submersible victims under the headline:

"Toll of our Tireless U Boats."

The public realizes that many of these vessels are only small fishing smacks of no great value. But by wipping out these fishing craft the submarine crews are gradually removing England's best defense against submarine attacks. Not only have the fishermen given warning of the presence of U boats, but in at least one instance, that of the U-14 they have rammed and sunk one of Germany's "unterseebootes."

The success of the submarine blockade is proved, according to German naval authorities, by the rise in price of foodstuffs in both Great Britain and France. The only question aswed here is, "How long can English ship owners stand the drain?"

At the age of 30 a man begins to unlearn what he doesn't know.

BOYHOOD DIVIDED IN THREE STAGES

Dr. William B. Forbush Explains the Varying Peculiarities of Johnnie, Jack and John

TELLS PARENTS TO ASK GIRLS

Bring His Girl as Well as Boy Friends to the House Is His Advice

"There are three ages of boyhood," Dr. William Byron Forbush told a good sized audience at the Wisconsin Week chautauqua last night, "Johnnie, Jack and John. The Johnnie period is the period of awakening interest. The Jack period is the growing period. The John period is practical maturity."

Fighting Instinct Goes

"In the Johnnie age the boy has unlearned habits or instincts. He is prone to fighting, but as the tail of a tadpole is absorbed in the making of a frog, so is the fighting instinct of the boy absorbed in the making of a man.

"In the Jack period the youth wants to ramble; home life has little interest for him. He is frequently liable to be misunderstood especially in the matter of his acquaintances among the other sex."

Dr. Forbush urged parents to invite the boy's girl friends as well as his boy friends to the home.

"Boys need a measure of responsibility," he said. He proposed the plan of giving the boy an "inclusive allowance," from which the youth should pay his expenses with the exception of board and incidentals. "Sooner or later the father will be regarded as a trusted counselor and not as a paternal dictator."

Mr. Forbush closed his lecture with an appeal for the co-operation of the church, state and home for the best interests of the boy.

Glee Club on Program

Dr. Forbush and the Illinois Glee club combined to make the afternoon and evening performances of the second day of the chautauqua an instructive and pleasing entertainment.

In the afternoon Dr. Forbush discussed the advantages and power of story-telling to the children. He explained the correct method of telling a story, illustrating his points by cleverly told stories.

Big Concerts Today

The largest musical company of the entire week's program will be heard this afternoon and evening when Thatcher's famous symphony orchestra of Chicago will appear. The artistic rendition of their portion of the program is said to represent the last word in music.

The company is led by a noted orchestra leader, James Thatcher, who is a composer as well as a director. Several of his own compositions will be given at today's entertainments.

The orchestra will have the assistance of Mrs. Jennie Thatcher Beach, a coloratura soprano.

REPORTED WOUNDED

ATHENS, July 6.—General Liman von Sanders, German commander at the Dardanelles, has been wounded for the second time, according to dispatches received here today.

Athens dispatches in May reported that von Sanders had been slightly wounded and temporarily succeeded in command of the Turkish forces on Gallipoli peninsula by Admiral von Usedom.

MANY SPECIALS TAKE SHRINERS TO CONVENTION

Secret Order Delegates, C. E. Representatives and Militia Pass City on Special Trains

Three sections of No. 57 passed through the north side over the Milwaukee railroad this morning, carrying hundreds of Shriners from the eastern states to the national convention of the order at Seattle. The special passed through the city at 4:30. It was made up entirely of tourist sleepers. This afternoon at 4:40 a second detachment of Shriners will pass through La Crosse, four sections of No. 5 being necessary to accommodate them.

The first section of No. 56, a special carrying delegations from Christian Endeavor societies in the west, passed through the city at 11:15 last night. The second section went through this morning. They are from Minneapolis and intermediate points, and are bound for Chicago.

Members of the national guard, coming from the western states, bound for Camp Robinson, near Sparta, passed through North La Crosse in two special trains yesterday morning at 11:30. They were on their way to the maneuvers to be held at the camp during the next two or three weeks. The army men are from Sioux Falls and Mitchell, S. D.; Pierre, N. D., and Carson City, Nev.

A silk special, composed of nine cars, bound from Seattle to Chicago, passed through the north side early this morning.

LONDON GIRLS FIGHT FIRES WHILE MEN FIGHT ENEMY AT THE FRONT

In a London draper's shop the girls have taken the place of the men—now in the army—who composed the fire brigade of the establishment. During the drills which take place daily they answer the call as quickly as did the male members and they are almost as capable as the men when it comes to handling the hose and nozzle in a stubborn blaze.

"DEATH BEND" FOR DEATH CROSSING

Nic Webber Points to New Street Car Peril Which Should Be Promptly Removed

If there be any truth in the adage "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" the board of public works and the street car company will heed the advice of Mr. Nic Webber, "safety first" advocate, that a better view be established at the corner at Mill and Monitor streets, where the course of traffic between the north and south sides is diverted to cross the new Rose street viaduct. The corner is thickly grown with trees close up to the street-line. The natural screen masks the curve and what lies beyond until one is fairly onto it. At even moderate speed accident are too easily possible, for cars or motors must be almost upon danger, should danger exist, before it is discovered.

The condition is such that removal of the trees for a distance of 200 feet to the south and fifty feet to the north of the turn would obviate the danger.

There is "horse sense" in Mr. Webber's plea that steps be taken in this direction, for the luck which has so far prevented smash-ups at the curve cannot be expected to hold indefinitely.

The Rose street viaduct was constructed mainly to put a period to the list of disasters at "Death Crossing." It was $150,000 of needless expense if for "Death Crossing" is substituted "Death Bend."

ORTHODOX PRIEST CALLED AWAY AND BAPTISM GOES OVER

Rev. N. E. Yanney, who came to the St. Elias' Syrian Orthodox congregation for the purpose of holding a baptismal service on Sunday afternoon, Saturday morning was suddenly called to Cedar Rapids. The baptism ceremonies were accordingly postponed until later in the week, when Rev. Yanney is expected to return to the city.

Services were held at the church at 9 o'clock Sunday morning. Rev. Serapaim Nassor, Chicago, conducted the services. Rev. Nassor has returned to his home in Chicago.

LANSING SCHOOL CONTRACT IS LET

LANSING, Iowa, July 6.—(Special.)—Contract for construction of the school building was let to Mr. Moen of Calmar, his bid being the lowest submitted. George Davis of Waukon was awarded the contract for plumbing and heating.

Misses Mary Walser and Grace Mulholland of La Crosse, are in the city for a short vacation stay with relatives.

J. J. Dunlevy and daughter, Kathryne left Saturday morning for a sojourn with the Wallace O'Connor family of Sacred Heart, Minn.

The "Sidney" will convey a company of excursionists from this point to La Crosse Friday, July 9. The Chatauqua and musical festival in the city on that date, will give many outsiders an opportunity of taking in the river trip.

Misses Kate McGuire and Margaret McGoxern of Wexford were city shoppers on Friday.

Miss Viola Tillottson spent the week-end with New Albin friends.

Miss Margaret Mohr of Galena, Ill., accompanied by her niece, Elaine Wellendorf, arrived in Lansing Friday for a short stay with relatives.

Mrs. Mary Kelleher, who has been very ill with pneumonia, is gaining daily and her ultimate recovery is now assured.

The agricultural convention representatives invaded the city, July 2. Twenty-seven automobiles strong, their route was changed due to a request of Lansing citizens that they visit here. A stay of about an hour was made in town, speeches by Hon. J. S. Hart, Guy Eaton, W. S. Dutton and others of Waukon, being followed by addresses from local citizens, including Hon. J. P. Conway.

GERMANY HOPES TO PROTECT NEUTRALS YET RETAIN POLICY

Would Safeguard Neutrals on Seas Without Surrendering Advantages Afforded by Submarines

OPINION IS SEMI - OFFICIAL

Is Thought Humanity Plea Against Undersea Warfare Will Be Rejected

BERLIN, via Wireless to Sayville, July 6.—"The German reply in the Lusitania matter is now being considered by the government," it was stated here officially this afternoon. "Its delivery may be expected by the end of the week."

WASHINGTON, July 6. — Germany hopes to frame a new rule of international warfare in her reply to the United States. She hopes to provide for neutrals' safety afloat without surrendering the advantage which her submarines afford her.

This in the opinion today of many high officials here is the reason for the delay in the note's completion. It is known Germany has informally accepted America's demand for recognition of Americans' right to travel in safety on any ships which do not violate the regulations governing merchant vessels in time of war.

She has rejected, however, the sugestion that, "in the interests of humanity" she refrain from torpedoing merchantmen of every class. Germany, it has also developed, wants the United States and other neutral nations to aid her in safeguarding neutrals' lives.

No doubt remained in officials' minds that the note would be satisfactory. There was every indication that it will meet American views in detail as well as in its main essentials.

The reason officialdom is so certain is that the whole matter, it is known, is being gone over in advance between the Berlin foreign office and President Wilson.

Gerard Informed on Substance

Point by point, the German diplomats are letting Ambassador Gerard know what they propose to write into the communication.

Theoretically the German-American discussion consists of an exchange of formal, published communications. Practically, a point has been reached where the formal notes simply constitute the record of what might be called a previous oral agreement, though of course the conversation is not actually by word of mouth, but by telegraph and cable.

The progress of this informal preliminary negotiation is the cause of the delay in the German note's transmission. The prospect was today that it would not reach Washington much, if any, before August 1. When it does arrive, however, far more progress will have been made than would have been the case if the formal communication had come sooner.

Official authority for these statements was obtainable today. That they were true was known, however, on unquestionable authority.

That there should yet be a hitch in the unofficial negotiations was not, to be sure, entirely impossible, but such a thing seems wholly unlikely.

The president was known to be personally conducting the American end of the discussion. A direct wire connects the state department with the vacation capital.

It is understood here that the kaiser is in close touch with the discussion, just as President Wilson is in the closest touch at this end of the line.

Thus far everything has progressed so smoothly that it was predicted in some quarters today that the president will not return to Washington for perhaps another two weeks, though previously it was expected he would be back this week.

The state department's reticence concerning German-American exchanges had increased today.

Secretary Lansing said he could not discuss dispatches received from Berlin in explanation of the delay in the German note. Dispatches received from Ambassador Gerard, were he declared "essentially official," and if the German officials cared to give anything out it was their privilege.

He seemed somewhat put out by the suggestions that any negotiations in the line of "secret diplomacy" were pending.

'Twill Go Hard With Poisoner Who Faces Judge

If the police ever catch the dog poisoner who has acted as executioner to so many household pets in the city of late, he will find no mercy at the hands of Police Justice Clinton W. Hunt. Judge Hunt's pet spaniel, "Queen,' died yesterday of arsenic poisoning, under circumstances which lead her sorrowing owner to suspect malicious intent.

"Queen" was a valuable black spaniel, a friend and comrade of Judge Hunt since she was a tiny pup.

TWENTY-ONE YEARS OF MARRIED LIFE END IN THE COURT

After twenty-one years of married life, during which four children were born, Mrs. Minnie Caven, 1401 Vine street, is asking circuit court here for separation in divorce. She alleges instances of cruelty covering many years, in the complaint filed with clerk of the court today, and says that at times David N. Caven, the husband, beat her with his fists, and even beat her oldest daughter. Mr. and Mrs. Caven were married here in 1894.

NEW INSURANCE COMPANY STARTS

Builders' Mutual Liability Insurance Company of Madson Formed by Master Builders

MADISON, Wis., July 3.—Insurance Commissioner M. J. Cleary yesterday issued a license to the Builders' Limited Mutual Liability Insurance company of Wisconsin, with home officers in this city. The company is composed of contractors engaged in the various building operations. The Wisconsin Association of Master Builders planned and organized the company. Joseph Tyrrell, Madison, is president of both the state association and the insurance company. Over 200 policies were issued by the Madison office.

The directors of the new company are: Joseph Tyrrell and George Cnare, Madison; M. G. Winter, M. C. Peters and H. C. Kelling, Milwaukee; Evert Schmidt, Waupun; John Schatz, Watertown; Emil Pautz, Janesville; M. C. Mertz, Oshkosh; J. L. Leonhart, Appleton, and W. H. Quinn, Beloit. The officers are: Joseph Tyrrell, Madison, president; M. G. Winter, Milwaukee; vice-president; Harry L. Geisler, Madison, secretary; George Cnare, Madison, treasurer. The preliminary work was largely in the hands of Joseph Tyrrell, George Cnare and Harry Geisler, Madison, and M. G. Winter and O. H. Ulbricht, Milwaukee. The latter is secretary of the State Contractors' association.

The department has also licensed the Merchants' Life & Casualty company of Minneapolis, health and accident insurance, with capital of $100,000 and admitted assets of $192,000.

The Penn Mutual Life of Philadelphia is inquiring of Commissioner Cleary relative to the re-admission of that company to Wisconsin under the new law which removes some of the restrictions which prompted a number of companies to withdraw fro the state in 1907.

The Mutual Life of New York, the first eastern company to return under this law, has made its first appointments of agents in the state, the number including W. W. Knussi, John H. McBreen and Bruce Whitney, Milwaukee; Oswald A. Thomas, Wauwatosa; Dewart L. German, Chicago, Ill., and George G. Strathern, Madison.

SUICIDE'S BODY FOUND

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., July 6.—The body of Mrs. Edward Berlindan, wife of an official of the Olds Motor company, was found back of a garage at the Berlindan summer home near New Baltimore, a summer resort on Lake St. Claire today. A revolver was found near the body and Justice J. G. Hill after a short examination, declared the woman committed suicide.

FIRE IN ROOF.

TRANE FIELD DAY BIG CELEBRATION

Trane's in Trancing and Takes Several Prizes Although He Is One of the Judges

With James A. Trane as Traner, all the employes of the Trane company were in Training for the Trane field day events which took place at the Trane picnic at Dresden Park yesterday.

That it was a "sane Fourth" affair is evidenced by the exciting announcement which featured the invitations:

"Soft Drinks Served All Day."

The party left the Saenger boat livery at 7:30 a. m., arriving without mishap and at 10 o'clock the field meet began. Mr. Trane and Mr. Iverson acted as judges, which may account for "Jim's" winnings. If anyone imagined that the veteran plumber had lost his "pep" with the lapse of years, the notion will be obliterated by a glance at the following list of prize winners:

Running broad jump, one vulcan pipe vise—H. Crider.

Peanut race, one 8 inch Stillson wrench—W. Policheck.

Sack race, one 8 inch Stillson wrench—W. Policheck.

Ladies' Potato race, one box chocolates to first three—Mary White.

Potato race, one 10 inch Stillson wrench—J. Syverson.

One hundred yard race, one steel fish pole—R. N. Trane.

Old Men's race, one 10 inch Stillson wrench—J. A. Trane.

Standing broad jump, one 10 inch Stillson wrench—Geo. Nutting.

Three legged race, two 18 inch wrench—Nutting and Trane.

Ladies Shot Put ,one box chocolates to first three—Mrs. Jandts.

Men's Shot Put, one 8 inch Stillson wrench—C. Hoeffling.

Two hundred yard dash, one set No. 6 Beaver stocks and dies—A. Tanke.

Fat Men's race, 180 pounds or more, 1 12 inch chain wrench—J. A. Trane.

Ladies' Nail Driving contest, one box chocolates to each of three winners.—Martha Beust.

Ladies' Ball Throwing contest, one box chocolates to first three—S. Trane.

Relay Race, three men in each team, 1 18 inch Stillson to each winner — Crider, Polichek and Tanke.

Stenographers' race, one glass shelf—Eva Gayman.

Home runs featured the ball game between the plumbers and stea fitters, the plumbers starring with the stick and winning by the ample score of 21 to 7. The batteries were: Plumbers, Crider and Tanke; Steam Fitters, Nutting, R. Trane and Kienholtz.

CHIEF CALLED BY MOTHER'S ILLNESS

Chief of Police John B. Webber left hurriedly for St. Paul last night following a telephone message to the effect that his mother, Mrs. Adam Webber, who formerly lived in La Crosse, was dangerously ill. No word as to Mrs. Webber's condition was received here today.

NEW YORK POLICE HEADQUARTERS HIT BY DYNAMITE BOMB

Police Link Explosion with Capital Incident and Attempt at Carnegie's Residence

NEW YORK, July 6.—A dynamite bomb was exploded last night adjoining the basement of police headquarters directly under the detective bureau.

Five prisoners in the lockup were slightly injured by the falling of the ceiling.

Spurred by the attempt last night to wreck police headquarters with a bomb, the police are today working on the theory that this latest bomb outrage may have been part of a widespread campaign of terror. Following so closely the attempt to blow up Andrew Carnegie's Fifth tvenue home and the dynamiting of the capitol at Washington, last night's attempt has created a nation-wide police activity.

John Koss, an Austrian, who was discovered hiding in a hallway opposite police headquarters at the time of the explosion, was detained by the police.

PAIR WHO ROBBED MRS. M'ELDOWNEY START SENTENCES

Barney Bertsche and James Ryan Surrender and Are Take to Joliet Pen Today

CHICAGO, July 6.—For swindling Mrs. Hope L. McEldowney of West Salem, Wis., out of $15,000, Christian P. (Barney) Bertsche and James Ryan today started serving their indeterminate sentence of from one to ten years at Joliet penitentiary.

The men had been out on bond and had promised Jailer Davis to return to form part of a "chain gang" of fourteen other criminals on their way to Joliet, but shortly after 9 o'clock today they surrendered to Deputy Sheriff John Berscher and went to Joliet in an automobile.

ROCHESTER COMING HERE TO GIVE US CONCERT JULY 15

Minnesota City's Business Men Will Be Here with a Band and a Boat Next Week

Five hundred strong, Rochester, Minn., business men will invade La Crosse Thursday, July 15. A "booster" excursion conducted by the Rochester Commercial club will arrive at 12 o'clock on the steamer Sidney. The commercial club will have with it the Rochester park band, one of the best known musical organizations in southern Minnesota. The visitors' plans include a concert here when the boat arrives.

Sensabaugh, mysteriously, refusing to go further.

"Because her friends feel she is too weak, and because she cannot do anything," said her attorney.

Trace Fragments of Life

All her attorney could trace for Mrs. Holt up to 1908—and then only by throwing in sidelights from the testimony of Attorney James of Fort Worth, a friend of Holt—were a few dim fragments of Holt's life. Born? Somewhere in Wisconsin; educated in Chicago schools, and probably in Chicago university. He was abroad some time, went into Mexico some time, came out in 1908—two years after Mrs. Erich Muenter died—and attended the Polytechnic institute at Fort Worth, where he met Mrs. Holt. From then on, his life is an open book, but that dim past of nine years ago and before, is a blank mystery.

Oscar Sensabaugh, who lived with his sister and brother-in-law when a few years ago Holt was teaching in Virginia, "thought" Holt went into Mexico from Chicago, about two years before 1908.

That, strangely enough, was about the time when Mrs. Erich Muenter died mysteriously at Cambridge, Mass.

"Idea Absurd"

But, said Mrs. Holt, through her lawyer, he was not Muenter—that is "impossible, inconceivable, and absurd"—and she places "no credence" in that story.

And why does this shielded, hidden little woman, with her two smiling, care-free children, who do not know of the cloud over their lives—why does she know so little of the past of the man she wedded?

"Because she and he were both students—concerned only in their studies. They paid no attention to minor things," according to Mrs. Holt's lawyer.

A member of the Sensabaugh household received the news of Mr. Holt's attempt at suicide, but made no comment.

Chief Ryan wired Police Commissioner Woods today that some members of the Sensabaugh family will go to New York soon to see Holt.

WILSON'S PEACE PLAN MAY BE MET BY VILLA AGENTS

Conference of Leading Representatives of Villa Is Held in the Capital

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Pancho Villa's "big three"—Enrique C. Llorente, Miguel Diaz Lombardo, and Felipe Angeles—conferred here today with a view to meeting President Wilson's peace demands, incidentally, some said, to enable Villa to "get from under" a possible collapse of his military organization in northwest Mexico.

Carranza headquarters expects a Villa communication within ten days, which they believed will amount to a proposal to turn over all Villa territory to Carranza—for a consideration of some sort.

The idea that Villa's representatives may be considering such a step is based on the belief that he is growing tired of warfare; that such a step would be in accord with the demands of the White house, and on the fact that Villa's military operations have not been anything like satisfactory in the past few months.

No official news had reached here this afternoon concerning a report of a Carranza-Villista battle near Paredon, nor the killing by Mexicans of two Americans near Lyford, Texas.

PRICE TESTIFIES IN OWN BEHALF AT "CO-OP" HEARING

Forme La Crosse Co-operative Expert and Ira M. J. Chryst Answer "Blue Sky" Charges

F. A. S. Price, former co-operative concern promoter here,and Ira M. J. Chryst, president of the national body of the American Society of Tquity, were the chief witnesses in the Wisconsin Railway commission hearing at New Richmond today.

As head officers and organizers of the Farmers' Terminal Packing company, established there under the co-operative laws some months ago, Chryst and Price are defending themselves against charges which brought about the hearing, to the effect that stock in the concern was sold in violation of the "Blue Sky" law.

Price was well known here for his activity in aiding the organization of the Farmers' Co-operative Packing company. He is one of the incorporators and chief promoter of the New Richmond concern. Others who will appear at the commission hearing are G. H. Horrell, Madison, and Spencer Haven of Hudson, the company attorney.

ity operation throughout July without effort for new business.

The brands which passed into the possession of the La Crosse syndicate today with the sale of the plants are "Golden Key," "Honeybee," and "Golden Nugget."

Other Plants Not Sold

Neither of the other two plants of the Valencia company were bid in at the receivers' sale today. The Hillsboro plant is under operation by the bondholders of the company, and the Reedsburg plant is not in operation. There were no bids for either.

The investment of La Crosse people in the stock of the original Valencia company totalled $65,000.

Among the La Crosse men interested in the new company, besides Mr. Montague, are J. W. Callaway, C. F. Callaway, H. C. Evenson, C. A. Worth, R. V. Abbatto, D. S. Fairbairn and J. I. Lamb.

SCHOOL DEBT IS RAISED BY BIG PICNIC IN PARK

$3,000 Cleared by Festivities Conducted Yesterday for Benefit of St. Mary's Parochial Fund

BIG TREAT FOR THE ORPHANS

Each Has a Half Dollar to Spend on Biggest Day of Life Which Winds Up with Fireworks

St. Mary's school picnic held yesterday at Myrick park, the biggest Fourth of July event in La Crosse, accomplished two big purposes.

The $3,000 debt on the St. Mary's parochial school building was lifted by the proceeds, it was announced by Rev. Robert Condon today, and 117 children of St. Michael's orphanage were given the most memorable treat of their lives.

About 5,000 persons were in attendance at the grounds. Street cars, carriages and automobiles filled with men, women and children from every Catholic church and school in La Crosse commenced to invade the grounds early in the morning and the hour was late when the last group disbanded.

Thanks People

"I desire to thank the people of La Crosse for their support," said, Dr. Condon today. "The crowds that turned out were beyond the hopes of myself and congregation, and the enthusiasm with which everyone entered into the day with the St. Mary's children was stirring."

The 117 children of St. Michael's orphanage had probably the gayest Fourth of July that their short lives have ever witnessed. Through a collection which was started some weeks ago each child was given fifty cents to spend without let or hindrance.

And Fireworks

Through the kindness of Dr. Condon, two street cars took the children from the home to the picnic grounds at 12:30 o'clock, and they remained until 6 o'clock. Another surprise of the day was given the children upon their return to the orphanage when they were entertained until 9 o'clock by fireworks donated by the William Doerflinger company.

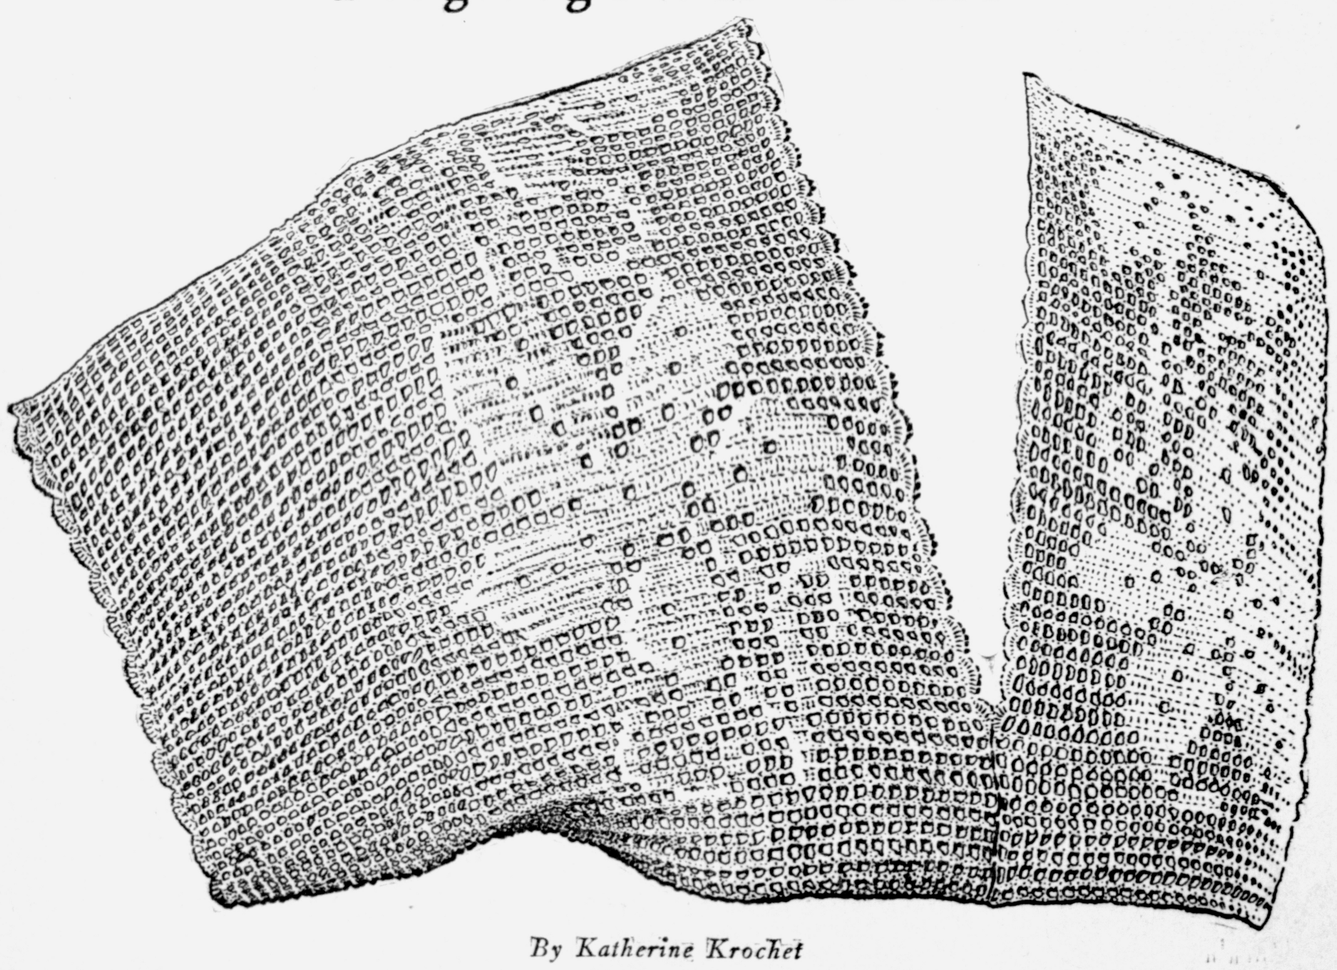
GRANDMA MOODY DIES AT WADENA AT AGE OF 94

Mrs. Jane Moody, aged 94, mother of Mrs. George C. Childress, 514 South Seventh street, and known in La Crosse for many years as "Grandma" Moody, died yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at her home in Wadena, Minn., where Mrs. Childress has been for several days. Mrs. Moody lived in La Crosse with her daughter for many years. She is survived by five children, three sisters and three brothers. Funeral services will take place at Wadena tomorrow. Mr. Childress will leave La Crosse tomorrow to return with Mrs. Childress.

Handsome Crocheted Nightgown Yoke



By Katherine Krochet

HAND embroidered genuine lace trimmed night wear, if bought in the ordinary ready made manner, is very costly; in fact, beyond the reach of most of us who love pretty things.

If, however, you follow the pattern above illustrated you can easily make a nightgown that will in prettiness and daintiness equal the most expensive creations on exhibition at the shops. Not only will you save a great deal of money, but you will experience the added pleasure that only actual creation can produce.

The illustration does little justice to the pattern and only gives you an idea of its completed beauty.

Following its seemingly complex stitches and discovering how really simple they are will fascinate you, the more so as the yoke nears completion.

Directions.

To work the pattern a number 8 crochet hook should be used, while five balls of number 15 klostersilk crochet cotton will suffice for crocheting material.

First chain 100 stitches, then for the first row 32 meshes, continue this for 6 rows. Follow the pattern minutely for first design, being especially careful to keep accurate account of the stitches.

When you come to the end of the vine which joins the leaves, repeat the first design. For the sleeves make a chain of 60 stitches joining front and back under the arm.

1st row, 1 dc, in 2nd st., of ch, ch, 2, 1 dc in 4th st of ch. Repeat for 30 meshes. Repeat for 9 rows. 10th row, 1 dc in top of dc, no ch, 1 dc in top of next dc, repeat until you have 28dc, with no ch between; 1 dc, ch 2 for balance of meshes. Repeat for next 11 rows.

If you are not able to entirely follow directions I want to help you and will be pleased to forward you extra instructions if you will send me, care of this newspaper, a self addressed stamped envelope.

THREE YEARS' WORK IN ANIMAL FILMS

It is the privilege of few people to visit the wilds of the Pacific coast—that strange and unusual part of the United States that call loudest to the true sportsman. Some time ago Edward A. Salisbury was commissioned by certain educational institutions to secure motion pictures of "wild life" in this section. The results of more than three years of his work, much of which was accomplished under decidedly discouraging circumstances, is epitomized in seven reels of highly interesting film which were run at the Majestic Sunday and Monday and are still there for today. Since all these remarkable pictures were taken on the very spot of the capture of the wild animals now permanently residing in zoological gardens of several western cities, they have uncommon interest. The feature is making a decided hit at the Majestic and is away from the ordinary run of films.

FACE COVERED WITH PIMPLES ALL HER LIFE

But Miss Ayres Got a 'Beautiful Complexion' at a Cost of Only $2.00

Nov. 23, 1914:—"All my life my face was covered completely with a mass of pimples, blackheads and blotches. I spent a lot of money on numerous remedies and treatments without success and no relief at all. I tried so many things that I was afraid my case could not be cured. Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap seemed to do me good right from the first. I used two jars of Resinol Ointment and some Resinol Soap, the total cost being only $2.00, and this completely cured my case. My skin is without a blemish and I am the possessor of a beautiful complexion." (Signed) Mabell Ayres, Stone Mountain, Va.

Every druggist sells Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment, and physicians have prescribed them for twenty years in the treatment of eczema and other tormenting skin troubles.

NURSE MAKES GOOD

In a small Wisconsin city which recently acquired the services of a visiting nurse, a man—call him John Smith, because that isn't his name—became consumptive. Never overly abundant, the family savings went very fast when the breadwinner lost his wage earning ability. The family had moved from one cheap dwelling to a cheaper one, until finally they were found by the nurse in a very poor little three room cottage.

Even here, however, the family was saving a much needed room, while the patient slept and lived in the warm, unventilated kitchen.

By dint of much persuasion, tact, and personal work while the family looked on, the nurse transformed the "spare room" into a reasonably satisfactory sick room and established her patient there. With clean sheets and the bed made as only a well trained nurse seems to know how to do it, the patient was very much more comfortable than he had been.

By this demonstration the nurse gained the respect of the family in a way that no amount of lecturing and "talking down to them" could have accomplished. The patient had a new respect for knowledge and training which could make him so comfortable in so short a time and with so little apparent effort. The wife was likewise pleased with the new arrangement and was duly impressed with the housewifely accomplishments of this woman representing a class that she had thought put on the airs of superiority without the ability to justify them.

Naturally, therefore, the opinions ions of the nurse took on new weight. Her suggestion that the patient ought to go to the county sanatorium meant more in the light of her accomplishments than it had previously. To the patient it seemed possible that if a nurse in a few minutes' work could do so much more for him than the well intentioned but uninformed ministrations of his overworked and undernourished wife and daughter, perhaps—indeed it was quite likely—the nurses and doctors at the sanatorium might accomplish even his cure.

With such a prospect, the patient lost some of the selfishness which is characteristic of all invalids. He began to consider the right of his wife and daughter to escape the infection which had floored him. As a consequence of all this, arrangements have been made for the admission of the patient to the tuberculosis sanatorium just as soon as a bed is available.

FIRST GOVERNOR OF WISCONSIN WAS A SLAVE-HOLDER

Territorial Governor Dodge Brought Blacks Here but Freed Them in Five Years

FEW NEGROES IN SERVITUDE

Much Excitement Caused by Sale of Negro Maids Owned by Pastor's Wife

(By Frederick Merk, Wisconsin State Historical Society)

Few states in the north more earnestly opposed negro slavery prior to the Civil war than Wisconsin, and certainly none contributed more whole-heartedly to its overthrow in the final appeal to arms. Yet even in Wisconsin negro slavery was not an entirely unknown institution. It is true the famous Ordinance of 1787 explicitly forbade human bondage in any part of the Northwest Territory, and on the whole its provisions were obeyed, but, as we shall see, there were instances when slaves were actually held within the state.

First Governor Slave-Holder

No less prominent a pioneer than Henry Dodge, the first territorial governor of Wisconsin, thus violated the fundamental law of the Northwest Territory. Upon removing to Wisconsin from his home in the south, he called his negroes together and, announcing to them his plan to migrate to the land of freedom, promised to set them all free if they would follow him and serve him for five years. It is pleasant to record of Governor Dodge that he not only lived up to the letter of his promise, but at the appointed time gave each man of them forty acres of land and a yoke of oxen. To this day the descendants of these Wisconsin slaves may be found living in the vicinity of their early homes near Dodgeville.

A less happy fate was that of several negro girls who were held as household servants by the wife of a preacher in Platteville. For a time no objection was raised by the people of the surrounding country to their condition of bondage, but at length sufficient feeling was aroused to make it unsafe longer to retain them. They were accordingly secretly hurried off to St. Louis, where slavery was the normal lot of the negro, and nothing further was ever heard of them. Intense indignation was felt in southwestern Wisconsin over this unfortunate and unlawful occurrence, and the preacher was haled before the Rock River Methodist conference on a charge of kidnapping, but for some reason he was never convicted.

Sued For Wages

In some cases immigrants to Wisconsin from southern states brought their slaves with them to the new territory without formally emancipating them, yet did not hold them in bondage by open coercion. In such cases the servitude rested primarily upon the well known loyalty of the negroes to their masters, the force of habit, and mutual affection. Gen. George W. Jones, one of the most prominent of the pioneers of Wisconsin Territory, thus held several negroes in partial bondage or a number of years. One of them once brought suit against the old general for wages, but, according to common repute, he only "succeeded in getting nothing."

Whatever negro slaves were held in Wisconsin were held in the southwestern lead mining region into which immigration from the slave-holding states of Kentucky, Tennessee and Missouri was heaviest. On the other hand the immigrants who poured into Wisconsin from the New England and middle states were bitterly hostile to every form of human bondage. These soon formed a predominant part of the state's population. It was this element that fostered the abolition agitation and helped to establish underground railway stations for runaway slaves, and it was this same element that was foremost in sustaining President Lincoln during the trying years of the Civil war.

SOME folks have tried so many kinds that they can hardly believe that there is a Real Tobacco Chew.

A user of ordinary tobacco needs to get the taste and comfort of the Real Tobacco Chew. Then he knows for sure that he has found the tobacco he's hunted for half his life.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough—cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it until you find the strength chew that suits you, then see how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end. The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

"Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste."

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD

BY HAL SHERIDAN
(Written for the United Press.)

The Cincinnati Reds did most of the home running, Wingo, Groh, and Griffith connecting for circuit trips during a double-header.

Walsh made a homer for the Athletics and stole home, two bases, made a couple of runs, etc.

Alexander and the Phillies celebrated by shutting out the Giants in a one-hit game.

It was a cheerful day in the Hub, Clark Griffith's pastimers were shut out by the Red Sox.

The Dodgers dropped the world's champions into seventh place.

Chicago's challengers had better luck, dropping two to the Browns, but retaining a safe lead.

Cobb was in only fair voice, scoring twice and getting four hits during a double-header—so split honors with Cleveland.

The Pirates maintained the status quo in a race for third place, Honus coming up for a pair of timely two-baggers in the afternoon. The morning game looked like the Cards were going up a notch.

Horrors! Rebuffed twice on the same day by Herzie's Reds. And now those Cubs lead only by one game.

St. Louis and Philadelphia emulated Boston in grabbing two at a time much to the discommoding of Chicago and New York respectively.

Credit Zimmerman with a world's record. During the Cub-Red Leg melee Roger was chased and the fans threw cushions at the umpires. Zim rode safely through the storm.

A foolish person is one who is unagle to see things from your point of view.

OMAHA RACE GOES TO RICKENBACHER

OMAHA, Neb., July 6.—Eddie Rickenbacker won the 300 mile $15,000 automobile race held on Omaha's new board speedway Monday. O'Donnell of Milwaukee was second; Tom Orr, third; and H. Donaldson, fourth.

His time was 3:17:37 1-5, and his average speed was 91:07 miles an hour.

The winner's share of the prize money was $6,000. In addition to this Rickenbacker won $500 for leading at the end of the first and second hundred miles.

Before the race, Tom Orr broke the world's record for five miles, negotiating it in three minutes flat. The former record was made by Caleb Bragg in Los Angeles in 3:11¾ seconds.

NELSONS LAM THE BALL IN SIXTH AND SCORE TEN RUNS

It was a good game until the sixth inning, said a man who saw the game at Galesville yesterday between the Nelsons of this city and the home team. The Nelsons won the game 12 to 0, Evenson throwing and Roeder, erstwhile shortstop, catching. Sickles, Squier and Childers were off somewhere at a picnic. Ten runs were scored in the tenth, Evenson, Roeder and Meinert batting twice, each getting two hits in that frame.

Beranek came across with another homer and Meinert and Kabat each contributed a double. Evenson hit safely three times in five times at bat.

The victory was the tenth consecutive for the Nelsons.

Optimism Not Always Reassuring.

"I read with intense interest," said Noyes E. Brewmore, "the story of the boy with a smile who worked his way up rung by rung until he became president of a trust company. Personally, however, whenever a man with a smile approaches and gives me the glad hand, I feel instinctively that I am due for a touch."—Kansas City Star.

Chicago Grain Review

CHICAGO, July 6.—Weak cables and greatly improved weather were today responsible for sharp declines in wheat prices. Today's opening was 1½c, ¾c and 1½c lower than the close on Saturday. At one time later in the day prices were 2 points, 1¼ and ⅛c lower than the opening.

Corn suffered from the wheat weakness during the early trading, being down ½, ⅛ and ¼ at the opening. Later, however, some buying developed and prices advanced ¼c, ⅛c and ⅜c above the opening.

Oats prices were down with wheat. The opening was ¼c below the close Saturday. Later when wheat recessions continued oats fell off 1⅛, ¼c and 1¼c from opening prices.

Provisions were higher at the opening because of reduced receipts, later developed some buying strength and advanced slightly.

ANDERSON ALLOWS TWO HITS AGAINST ONALASKA MONDAY

Athletes Defeat Up-river Team in Easy Fashion, Moppy Starring on the Mound

The hoodoo of La Crosse over Onalaska continued its work yesterday when the Athletes trimmed the up-river team 5 to 1 in the stellar sporting Fourth of July event staged at League park. Moppy Anderson pitched and he held the Onalaskans to two hits.

One of the hits, a pretty double by Christopherson in the fifth, scored Bucklin, who reached second base on successive errors by Moppy and Tyluca. Freng registered the other blow, a single in the fourth. He was out stealing second, Satek to Tyluca.

Anderson lived up to his reputation as a strikeout artist, sending sixteen men to the bench by the windy route. He struck out the three men who faced him in the last inning. He fanned three men in the fifth and in each of the second, sixth, seventh and eighth innings made away with two men by strikeouts.

Summaries—Stolen bases: Weeks, Tyluca; sacrifice hits: Becker 2; two base hits: Christopherson, Weise, Becker, Rogstad, Satek; double plays: Wall to Comeau to Thompson; Rogstad to Tyluca to Weisse; struck out: by Christopherson 6, by Anderson 16; first base on balls: off Anderson 3; off Christopherson 3; hits batsmen: Wall, Lovold; umpire: Hunt.

Christopherson struck out six men. Both pitchers allowed three passes each.

The Athletes pushed over three scores in the fourth inning. Weisse, first up, doubled into left field and H. Hodge dropped a low fly off of Williams' bat. Weisse going to third. He was caught at the plate when Weeks rolled to Christopherson. Tyluca singled, scoring Williams. Satek was out to T. Hodge and Anderson singled, scoring Weeks and Tyluca. Lovold was out, Bucklin to Thompson.

Anderson reached first and second in the seventh on successive errors by Wall, and Copsey walked. Becker sacrificed and Rogstad doubled, scoring Anderson and Copsey. Weisse singled and the next two men fouled out.

MAJESTICS LACE THE DIAMONDS AT COPELAND PARK

Waska, throwing for the Majestics yesterday at Copeland park against the Diamonds, held the opposition at arm's length, winning 8 to 4. Adri Fuchs starred at the bat with a single, a double and a triple in four times at bat.

BALL LIKES JONES

ST. LOUIS, July 6.—Phil Ball, president of the St. Louis Federals will not accept the resignation of Fielder Jones, said to have been wired from Kansas City yesterday following a row with Umpires Howell and Finneran. "This affair will mean some new umpires in the Federal league," said Ball.

Where?

Joseph and Isaac went to hear Billy Sunday preach, and after the service, as they were going home, Joseph said:

"Vell, Izaac, vat do you tink of him?"

"I didn't like him," said Isaac. "Too much hell! It was hell, hell, hell all the time. And I don't believe there is any hell, Joseph."

"No hell?" asked Joseph in amazement.

"No," answered the friend.

"Vel, then, Izaac," said Joseph "if there is no hell, where is bizness gone?"

FRANK CHANCE SIGNED WITH MAJORS AT $1,200; BUSHER TODAY SNEERS AT THAT

When Frank Chance joined the big leagues in 1898 he signed at $1,200, and was eager about it. Today a bush league star would scoff at that sum. There was a time when there was more honor and less money in playing in fast company. Chance, though he started low, came to be the highest salaried manager in the game.

RUSHFORD, Minn., July 6.—(Special.)—While driving from Rushford to Bratsberg Saturday afternoon, Anton Simmons and party of Bratsberg narrowly escaped serious injury. The automobile ran into a ditch on one side of the road, striking two trees in succession. The car was greatly damaged. The occupants jumped and saved their lives.

Overcoats on Fourth.

Winter coats were strongly in evidence yesterday when Rushford celebrated its Fourth of July. Chilly winds and frequent showers rendered the day unpleasant.

Lewiston to Have Plant.

Lewiston, Minn., sixteen miles from this city, is to have an up-to-date pickling plant. Construction work is being rushed in order that the 1915 crop of cucumbers can be handled. The apple crop in this vicinity promises to be of bumper variety if no unfavorable conditions arise. Small fruits have also been plentiful about here this summer.

Local and Personal.

Messrs. D. S. Prinzing and H. M. Smith were out in the country last Saturday in the interest of Rushford's Chautauqua, which will be held July 25 to 31.

H. M. Smith, of this city, has purchased forty acres of land in Fremont, according to a real estate deed.

The annual Sunday school picnic of the Rushford Presbyterian church will be held some time in August; July, the regular picnic month, being taken up with other affairs.

The Ladies' Missionary society of the Rushford Presbyterian church will hold its regular monthly meeting next Saturday afternoon at 2:30 p. m., at the church parlors. The devotionals will be in charge of Miss Belle McKay, and the hostesses for the afternoon will be Mesdames W. Baerman and L. A. Gullickson and Miss Bertha Blanchfield. All cordially invited to attend.

Mrs. Hugh Langman and daughter Miss Essie departed Tuesday for a two weeks' visit with relatives at Austin, Minn., and Sutherland, Iowa. Miss Essie, who is bookkeeper and cashier at Smith's store in this city, is having her annual vacation.

Unless good luck comes our way, the Rushford band must give up hopes of being reorganized. Prof. Lambert of Winona has decided not to come back for the purpose of taking the directorship and that leaves the matter unsettled for the present.

Ray Moore, a former Rushford young man, who for the past few years has been working with a mining company at Hibbing, Minn., in the capacity of civil engineer, is home for a short visit with his mother, sister and brother in this city.

Miss Evelyn Haeling of Kasson has returned to her home after a few days' visit with the J. C. Bantly family of this city.

Miss Cora Olson has returned to her duties at H. M. Smith's store after a two weeks' vacation spent in North Dakota and points in Minnesota.

Miss Elizabeth Murphy of Lewiston has been a recent guest of relatives a short distance north of Rushford.

HUNGARY FORBIDS USE OF MEATS ON TWO DAYS A WEEK

AMSTERDAM, July 6.—The Hungarian government has issued a decree prohibiting the purchase of meats on Tuesdays or Fridays, according to Budapest advices today. The proclamation called upon the people to do everything in their power to conserve their meat supplies.

"THE TANGLE" AT THE MAJESTIC

"The Tangle," Col. Jasper Ewing Brady's (late of U. S. army) military drama will be the feature at the Majestic for one day only, next Wednesday. It is played by the Vitagraph Broadway stars. In it are the following: Naomi Childers, Darwin Kerr, S. Rogers Lytton, Lillian Herbert, Charles Willesley, Capt. Harry Lombart, Phyllis Grey and others. The story is entangled in the meshes of love and honor, war, with all its terrors, solves a puzzling problem. The troop in the movies are regular U. S. army troops and were used with full permission of the war department.

It is easier for the average man to get next to a live wire than it is to be one.
